Dr. Heidi Köpp-Junk to Lecture & Perform Ancient Egyptian Love Songs

Lecture: Travel in Ancient Egypt – FREE to the Public

Today we associate travel mainly with tourism, but this differs greatly from and records of ancient Egyptian's. Who travelled in ancient Egypt and why? Was it only the high society, and did they travel just for fun or for economic reasons? How did they travel? Dr. Heidi Köpp-Junk from Trier University, Germany, answers these questions and shows the types of locomotion used on their journeys, from the sedan chair of Hetepheres, Khufu's mother, to the chariot of Akhenaten and Nefertiti.

Performance: 4000 Years of Love – Fundraiser Concert

Classically trained, Dr. Heidi Köpp sings a compilation of classic & pop love songs of today and from ancient Egypt since the time of Ramesses the Great. Playing a reproduction of an ancient Egyptian lute, she portrays love in ancient Egypt from various papyri: tender, humorous, satirical, but especially very romantic – a breathtaking & exhilarating concert. Dinner Included.
